Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 17 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
A cloudier day with some showers. Breezy and feeling cool.

Today:
It will be a dry and bright start, with some sunny spells. However, it will turn cloudier from the northeast, with some showers during the afternoon. These should mostly clear by the evening. Breezy and feeling cool, especially on coasts. Maximum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Tonight:
A largely dry and cloudy night for many. However, the cloud may be thick enough to give some light rain and drizzle along the coast by dawn. Staying frost-free. Minimum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Thursday:
Cloudy and cool with some outbreaks of rain in the east during the day. Drier, brighter and milder in the west. Rain will spread westwards later in the day. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Drier and brighter on Friday, after a cloudy and damp start. A chilly and bright start on Saturday, before turning cloudier through the day. Dry and mostly cloudy on Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.